

Part 6: Sharing With Others

Shared Repositories

Repositories contain resources such as project templates, idea space templates & styles, figure stencils & styles, color swatches, instant document templates, HTML export templates, and Sleuth modules.

Copying your repository in ~/Library/Application Support/Curio/Repository to a publicly available server, such as a shared Dropbox folder or network server, allows you to share your resources with others.

They simply need to add an entry pointing to that repository in their Preferences window, re-launch Curio, and all of your styles and templates will appear in the appropriate galleries and popups.
